Science Olympiad

Science Olympiad is an American team competition in which students compete in 'events' pertaining to various scientific disciplines, including earth science, biology, chemistry, physics, and engineering. Over 7,300 middle school and high school teams from 50 U.S. states compete each year, but only 49 states host competitions, with the exception being Vermont. U.S. territories do not compete. There are multiple levels of competition: invitational, regional, state, and national. Some states or private groups offer 'invitational' tournaments as practice for regional and state competitions. Teams which excel at the regional competitions advance to the state level, and then to the national level. Winners later receive several kinds of awards from medals to trophies and plaques. The program for Elementary-age students is less common and consistent. Schools have flexibility to implement the program to meet their needs. Some communities host competitive Elementary tournaments.
